(b) A River in Flood

Last year, we had rains without break for a couple of days. The people were tired of it. They were longing for the rain to stop. The water level in the rivers had risen dangerously. The radio and T.V were informing the people about flood. One morning I heard a cry, water, water, the Ravi was in flood. I got up and also saw that our compound was full of muddy water. The people were rushing here and there for a safe spot. Some climbed up to their roofs. The articles were floating. There were some tragedies of drowning. The trees were uprooted. Some eatables were given to the people effected by the flood. It was a sad sight. The army was also helping the people. Relief camps were set up for flood affected people. It was a sorry sight. In a week, the water subsided and the life came to normalcy. May Allah save us from all calamities of the nature!
